

Dead Bugs
by Jerry Prager

There are dead bugs in my bed, live ones on my wall:
they come every year, little blue gray bugs, with wings, although I've never seen them fly. I went to visit my ex-girlfriend & one fell out of my suit. They have a graveyard in my window sill that I vacuum up now & then; that must be hell for them.