

Night Songs
by Melinda Burns

She's recording birds' night songs outside her third floor room trying to figure out what they are

She sends them to me thinking her mom might know I don't but I listen to their heartfelt notes pouring out in the darkness while we are all confined in a pandemic night

I open my windows
to drink it in